

Why We Talk About Money

Money talks and so should we! We are creating spaces for intergenerational conversations where students, parents, and educators go beyond financial literacy to build financial resilience. Together we look at money as a tool and financial decision-making as a personal path. As a community we develop an understanding of our personal relationship with money, new ways of thinking and talking about money, and the skills to take action and advocate for ourselves and others.

Making Change Happen Together

Teaching our youth about finance impacts much more than wallets; it's critical to self-advocacy, promoting social justice, and addressing educational equity. Our professional development surveys show that educators and community leaders feel more capable and confident talking and teaching about personal finance topics following workshops. Together we can find our rhythm with finance, enrich instruction with money conversations, and create change in our classrooms and communities.

Book a Workshop Series

Professional Development Workshop Series
Educator Advocate Program

Who We've Worked With

TEACHERS COLLEGE
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

"This came at the right time in my personal life and when I teach it's going to be with more passion"

"I'm 35 years old and I've never had an experience or opportunity like this before."